

Northwest Reading Group in American Philosophy
Saturday, November 11th, 2017
Yachats, OR

Steven Brence (University of Oregon) and Alain Beauclair (MacEwan University) will lead the next meeting of the NW Reading Group on American Philosophy on November 11th, 2017 in Yachats, OR.

Their topic is "American Philosophy in Conversation with Popular Culture."

Specific readings will come later but are likely to include work by Emerson, Cavell, and Dewey, along with a few films. They say they are hoping to confront the Emersonian project of perfectionism with Deweyan worries about the loss of human agency.

If you are interested in attending, please contact Erin McKenna at emckenna@uoregon.edu. We need a sense of numbers to proceed with our planning. You will also want to secure housing in Yachats if you plan to spend the night. We usually meet from about 9 am to 4 pm, with a break for lunch and a walk.
